

The dissemination strategy of the project was carefully designed to ensure widespread visibility and engagement. A variety of channels were utilized to effectively communicate the project's objectives, activities, and outcomes to a diverse audience. These channels included popular social media platforms such as Facebook, Instagram, YouTube, TikTok, and LinkedIn, as well as traditional media like radio shows and dedicated website pages. Additionally, offline dissemination events provided direct engagement opportunities, fostering meaningful interactions with target groups.

This multi-faceted approach aimed to maximize the project's outreach, ensuring its key messages reached both local and international audiences across different demographics and interest groups. The strategic combination of online and offline efforts has contributed significantly to the overall impact and success of the dissemination process.

In August 2024, the city of Vienna gathered 6 different countries and their cultures in the project "Shall We Dance." This youth exchange program brought together participants from Bosnia and Herzegovina, Montenegro, Ukraine, North Macedonia, and Turkey, creating a vibrant tapestry of cultures, traditions, and shared experiences.

A Celebration of Cultural Diversity

At the heart of the "Shall We Dance" exchange was the opportunity to learn and experience the traditional dances of each participating country. This initiative was not just about mastering dance steps, but about fostering a deep understanding and appreciation for the unique cultural expressions of each nation. As participants danced, they were also learning about the stories, history, and values around them.

The exchange was an experience where participants taught each other their traditional dances, sharing the details of their cultural heritage. This shared activity helped them to break down barriers, creating a sense of unity and friendship within the group.

EVENTS

Presentation in Goražde

For her part of dissemination, Alma Kunovac hosted an info session in her hometown Goražde, where she talked about her experience as a participant in the Youth Exchange and how the application process works so attendees could also apply to similar projects. Around 15 people from different age groups and backgrounds attended the info session, with an emphasis on sharing the new information that they have gained to their classmates and others. The response of the attendees was great, they were quite interested in what we have learned during the YE with lots of questions asked, and they are quite interested in applying to next projects as soon as possible! Our experience in Vienna has made an amazing impression on them, and they hope to attend a similar project!

Presentation in Živinice

On Sunday, September 22, 2024, Lamija Aličić held an online meeting for the Association of High School Students in Bosnia and Herzegovina (ASuBiH) in Živinice. During the meeting, she spoke about Erasmus and the benefits it offers. Through her presentation, she shared her experience with the “Shall We Dance?” project that took place in Vienna, Austria. The members closely followed her presentation and were excited about what they heard. They expressed their interest through various questions about the project after the presentation.

Achievements in Dissemination

An indicator of our successful dissemination efforts is the creation of a choreography called "European Common Dance," which combined traditional dances from the six participating countries. This choreography was performed in a public park, attracting a wider audience and enhancing the visibility of the project.

Enhancing Visibility Through National Performances

As part of the dissemination strategy, each country group was assigned a unique task to further promote the project's visibility. They were instructed to perform their national dances as part of the European Common Dance in Vienna's popular and crowded locations. To ensure the project's branding was highlighted, participants incorporated posters and flags featuring the project name and code into their performances.

These vibrant public showcases not only drew significant attention but were also recorded and shared, amplifying the project's visibility across broader audiences. This creative approach effectively combined cultural expression with strategic dissemination, reinforcing the project's impact and outreach.

Additionally, we were hosted by the Meine Welt association in Vienna, where we presented the Shall we dance? Project and its outcomes. Inspired by the project, in December 2024, IKIGAI Association and Meine Welt jointly launched a folk dance course. This new partnership not only expands the impact of the Shall We Dance? project but also bridges generations by bringing together young people, the project's original target group, and senior participants. This collaboration fosters intergenerational learning, enriching the project's legacy. Furthermore, the outputs of the Shall We Dance? project are being actively utilized in this initiative, demonstrating the project's sustainability and long-term value.

Conclusion

The dissemination efforts undertaken throughout the project have successfully reached a significant audience, ensuring the project's visibility and impact across various platforms and target groups.

During the project's implementation, we utilized a diverse range of dissemination tools, including 42 Facebook posts, 36 Instagram posts, 1 LinkedIn post, 1 TikTok post, 3 website pages, 2 newsletters, 2 radio shows, and 6 offline meetings. Additionally, 5 videos highlighting the project were shared on the YouTube channels of IKIGAI (AU), KOVAN (TR), and YoM (ME), contributing to a total of 15 videos listed on YouTube.

Through social media platforms such as Facebook and Instagram, the project reached 5,182 people. Offline meetings engaged 80 individuals directly, while other dissemination channels reached approximately 2,100 people. Altogether, the dissemination activities connected with an impressive total of 7,362 individuals.

These numbers reflect the project's success in raising awareness and fostering engagement with its target audiences. The strategic use of both online and offline channels has maximized the project's outreach and ensured that its messages resonated with a diverse and widespread community. This strong dissemination impact sets a solid foundation for the project's outcomes to inspire and influence beyond its lifecycle.
